DESIRED WEALTH,

But in His Haste He Committed Murder, for Which Today He Paid the Penalty.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 27.—Morton was hanged at 10:35½. About 8 o'clock last night the three daughters of Morton called on the condemned father. They remained with him until nearly midnight and bade their father an affectionate farewell. After they had gone and a few moments spent in devotions, Morton threw himself upon his hammock. It was not a great while before he was wrapped in slumber. All through the night he slept well. He arose at 6 o'clock this morning, refreshed by his sleep. He exhibited strong nerve from the time he arose, and at 8 o'clock one of the prison officials told the United Press reporter that he did not believe any man was ever nervier than was Morton then. He ate heartily of the breakfast of fish prepared for him.

The crime for which James R. Morton this morning paid the penalty was one of the most brutal in the history of the county. It was the result of deliberate planning of a mind crazed by the desire for money. In this it was not dissimilar to the crime for which the death penalty was last paid in this county—the murder of Thomas Armstrong by John Hunter, who was hanged in 1879. Morton was, until a few months before his crime, a special officer in the lower section of the city, was looked upon as an intelligent colored man. He lived at 1,142 South Sixth street with two daughters, his wife being dead. Some time in April Mrs. Lydia Ann Wyatt, a seventy-three-year-old colored woman who was separated from her husband went to live at his house. She owned a piece of property which she sold in May for $800. In her visits to the lawyers in arranging the sale of the property, she was accompanied by Morton who took a great interest in her welfare. So great was this interest impressed upon her that on the 6th of May she made a will leaving Morton one half of her estate and a Camden lawyer the other half, the two heirs to act as her executors. Three days after this, Monday, May 9th, the murder occurred. Between 9 and 10 o'clock on that day Morton met the old woman as she came downstairs from her room. Snatching from her hand a rosewood cane which her age compelled her to use in walking, he felled her to the floor. In his confession made just after his arrest he declared that the old woman and he had a quarrel and that it was in a moment of passion that he struck her. At the post mortem examination her skull was found to have been fractured and no less than a dozen wounds were found on her body, most of them on the head. As soon as the old woman was dead, Morton took $225 from a bag she carried and left the house. He offered a colored undertaker $75 if he would bury her at once. This aroused suspicion and he was placed under arrest. It then developed that Morton, on April 20, attempted to get a Philadelphia medical student to purchase "a live woman subject, seventy-three years old and fat." Morton's trial took place on June 2. He pleaded not guilty, but just as the first juror entered the box he withdrew this and pleaded guilty. After two days' advising the court unanimously found him guilty of murder in the first degree. He was sentenced to be hanged on July 29, but through the intervention of Father Kelly, he was granted a reprieve until today.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Three Powder Magazines Blown Up by Lightning.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Aug. 26.—Three powder magazines, belonging one each to the Dupont, Rand & McNally and Hazzard Powder companies, blew up here yesterday afternoon. There were about 600 kegs of powder in the magazines. Lightning had been darting through the skies all forenoon, and at 1 o'clock a bolt struck one magazine, which was exploded, and at once wiped the two others from the face of the earth. The concussion was terrific, the earth trembled, and men, women and children rushed to the streets. The shock broke thousands of windows, and in some instances ruined houses a mile distant. Cattle grazing near the magazines were killed and terribly mangled. The shock was heard at Whitesboro, fifteen miles away. Every house within a mile of the magazines was badly damaged, and in many of them the inmates were thrown upon the floor and seriously injured. Half a dozen persons received dangerous wounds from broken glass and falling timbers. The total loss will amount to about $15,000.

INJUNCTION PAPERS.

Put a Stop to State Interference With Traffic.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 26.—The papers in the federal injunction suit granted by Judge McCormick at Dallas on Monday were formally served on Chairman Reagan and the other railway commissioners yesterday afternoon. Chairman Regan stated that in obeying the injunction the commission would not further interfere with the four roads concerned in procuring the injunction. The commission will go on as formerly making rates for the roads not included in the injunction.

JOHN NEEB HURT.

A Pile of Sacked Coffee Topples Over on Him.

John Neeb, shipping clerk at Bursley's wholesale grocery, was considerably bruised yesterday. He was assisting in unloading a truck load of sacked coffee and other merchandise, when the huge mass toppled over upon him. A cab was called and Neeb conveyed to his home, No. 60 Wallace street, where his injuries were found to consist of several painful bruises, but no bones were broken. It was a narrow escape.

THE BORDEN CASE.

The Fair Prisoner The Center of Attraction—Dr. Dolan Gives His Evidence.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 26.—The character of the crowds in the district court room this morning at the resumption of the Borden hearing was materially different from that of yesterday. Men were more plentiful and the women correspondingly scarce. This was probably due to a dreary rain that made the atmosphere in the court room close, muggy and generally uncomfortable. The prisoner and her friends came in at 9:55 unattended, except by the city marshal. Lizzie walked firmly after her sister and took her usual seat at the end of the settee between her two counsellors. She busied herself reading a letter written on a sheet of foolscap paper. The examination was resumed in a few minutes before 10 o'clock. Mr. Adams called Dr. Dolan to the stand. Dr. Dolan said he did not measure the handle of the hatchet, but he had concluded that it was about eighteen inches to two feet in length. He thought the murderer stood just behind Mr. Borden's head, but could not say that he struck with both hands. The person who killed Mrs. Borden struck a blow perhaps while she was standing up and the others were struck after she had fallen down. Her assailant may have stood astride the body about the location of the hips. He must have necessarily been spattered with blood. The lower part of his clothing would have more than the upper part. The hands of the murderer may or may not have been covered with blood. Witness did not give anyone permission to clean the woodwork of the house; in fact he told the family not to disturb the blood spots. He saw Mrs. Holmes at the house several times but did not tell her she could wash the woodwork. If the parlor door was washed it was done by some member of the family.

Saturday after the murder the parlor was washed. It had eight spots on it, and there were seven on the door-jamb. No other place of the sitting-room was washed. The witness said: "No one handled the axe but myself, so far as I know. I do not recall whether the axe was laid on the table or not. I examined the handle first when Mayor Coughlin called my attention to it in the marshal's office. I believe that the blade had been washed. The axe was not damp except as everything is liable to be damp in an earthen floored cellar. The axes were found on the earth." There was a lively spat between the witness and the attorney, growing out of confusing questions relating to the degree of dampness in a cellar. Witness would not say the axes were "bone" dry. So far as he knew no one had handled the axe in the marshal's room or elsewhere. Search of Mr. Borden's clothes was conducted by the undertaker. Keys, some silver money, a pocketbook and some documents were found tied in a handkerchief and were locked up in the marshal's safe.

CHOLERA IN ENGLAND.

The Plague Appears at Graves End—One Hundred and Forty Deaths at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Aug. 26.—The cholera continues to grow in virulence. Eight hundred cases were recorded yesterday, many of the victims having been seized but a few hours before they perished. The total number of deaths was 140. Professor Koch has telegraphed to Berlin that the plague is increasing in Hamburg. The authorities are doing everything possible to stay the spread of the disease. The bathing station and public meetings, balls, dances and gatherings, whether for business or amusement, have been prohibited. Fortunately there is no extraordinary temperature to aggravate the disease. The heat is normal.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The Asiatic cholera has arrived in England. The steamer Gemma, from Hamburg, has entered at Graves End bringing several cases of the plague. Two women on the steamer have died from the cholera and another victim, a man, is improving. The news has caused great consternation at Graves End and excitement in London.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The latest regarding cholera at Havre is that there were twenty-eight cases on Thursday and ten deaths from cholera that day. The authorities at Havre have been instructed to adopt the most stringent sanitary measures and especially to isolate every case.

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—General precautions are being taken to prevent the spread of cholera. The services of through carriages from Constantinople to Vienna have been suspended, like the service from Warsaw to Vienna, for fear of the introduction of the cholera.

The carriages to and from Constantinople go only as far as the Austro-Servian frontier at Semlin. There the passengers undergo a medical examination and have to change into different carriages.

Will Meet in Chicago.

BERNE, Aug. 26.—The international peace congress has voted to hold its next meeting in Chicago in 1893.

THE WIND UP.

Soldiers Make Raids on Miners' Camps and Captured Everybody in Sight.

OLIVER SPRINGS, Tenn, Aug. 26.—Volunteers were called for yesterday at Coal Creek by Lieutenant Patterson to go to Oliver Springs and try to take that place. As the whole brigade responded at once, thirty-seven men were picked. The soldiers, in command of Colonel Sevier and Lieutenant Patterson, arrived here at 12:30, when the telegraph office was seized. The train then went on to Indian Creek, where about twenty-five miners were captured. They were left in charge of seven men when Lieutenant Patterson order his men to march to Winter Gap mines, where thirty men were captured. Then he started across the mountains capturing twenty-five more. Lieutenant Mallory alone captured twenty, among them two or three of the leaders. They are being tried by Colonel Sevier and staff. All the miners captured and found guilty will be taken to Coal Creek today.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 26.—Governor Buchanan, who has been confined to his bed by sickness for a week, was able to go to the capital last night. It is supposed that he will at once take up the matter of the mining troubles in East Tennessee. The trial of the rioters in Marion county will begin in a few days.

PARTICULARS OF THE TRAGEDY.

Davis Recites the Story of the Fight With Brock.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., Aug. 26.—Passengers from the west yesterday brought additional particulars of the shooting of the Brock gang near West Water, Utah, Wednesday. The names of the men killed are Charles C. Brock, Charles A. Dusel and William Miller. The story of Davis is that he discovered that some property had been stolen from his house and an unsuccessful attempt made to set the house on fire. He suspected the Brock gang, and with a lad started to trace the stolen goods and demand their return or pay for the same. They finally brought up at the Brock cabin. They were met at the door by Dusel, who attacked Davis with a club, while Miller shot at him through the window. Davis killed Dusel and mortally wounded Miller. He then started away from the place and met Brock. The result was a fight, in which Brock was killed. This is the Davis story and there is not a person left to tell the story of the other side. Davis left West Water for Provo yesterday to surrender himself.

ADLAI STEVENSON.

Where and When the Next Vice-President Will Speak.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Aug. 26.—General Stevenson is in the best of health after his trip to New York. His program, so far as announced to him by the national committee, and including a few engagements made by himself, is as follows: Next Saturday he will address a mass meeting in this city; August 30th he will speak at Sedalia, Mo.; September 1st, at Vincennes, Ind.; September 2d, at Herndon, Ky., Mr. Stevenson's birthplace; September 7, at Indianapolis; September 8, at Marion, Ind.; September 9, at Clay City and Brazil, Ind.; September 10, at Green Castle and Terre Haute, Ind.; September 16th, at Asheville, N. C. After that he will make five speeches in North Carolina. October 1st he will deliver an address at Hamilton, Ohio, the home of ex-Governor Campbell. He will open his campaign in Illinois in October and will make five speeches.

GOVERNOR EAGLE DYING.

Lying at Death's Door in Richmond—A Big Fire.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 26.—A telegram received from Mrs. Eagle, states that her husband, Governor James H. Eagle, is lying at death's door at Richmond, Ky. It is believed he cannot recover. Governor Eagle has been ill for several weeks and lately went to Richmond, Ky., hoping that a change of climate would benefit him.

The large stave factory and cooperage works of the Geyer-Adams company, of this city, was entirely destroyed by fire early this morning. The loss is estimated at $25,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A COMING WEDDING.

Governor Croswell's Widow Will Marry Again.

ADRIAN, Mich., Aug. 26.—The engagement of Elizabeth Musgrave Croswell, widow of the late Governor Charles M. Croswell, of this city, to T. D. Merrill, a lumberman, of Saginaw, has become public. Mrs. Croswell's residence for the past three years has been in Chicago. She is the daughter of the late Judge Musgrave, of Charlotte, and sister-in-law of ex-United States Comptroller of the Currency E. S. Lacey.

CHANGE OF POSITION.

Prof. Crew Leaves the Lick Observatory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Prof. Henry Crow, of Lick observatory, has resigned. He will take the chair of physics at the Northwestern university. His is the third resignation from the staff of the Lick observatory within a few months.

ANOTHER DEFAULTER.

This Time It is Treasurer Helfich, of Ogden, Utah.

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 26.—The people of Ogden are greatly exercised over a report that City Treasurer Helfrich is a defaulter to the amount of $15,000. A city warrant for $4,000 was presented yesterday at the Citizens bank, where Mr. Helfrich keeps the city funds, and where he is also a bank clerk, and the warrant was dishonored and the statement made that there were no funds. It is said that Treasurer Helfrich has acknowledged the shortage and will surrender himself to his bondsmen.

REBELLION IN CAMP.

Switchmen Deny the Authority of Grand Master Sweeney and Defy His Mandates.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 26.—There is rebellion in the switchmen's order against Grand Master Sweeney. His authority is denied and his mandates are unheeded. The men have found a new leader in the person of Vice-Grand Master Barrett, of Chicago, and while Mr. Sweeney nurses his wounds in his hotel and says the strike is off, the men say it is not and that they will win yet. The results of the internal dissension was chiefly noticeable last night on the Lackawanna road. When the strike was declared off the Lackawanna men went to work, but when it was declared on again they quit and left the yards. So far as most of the other roads are concerned the men who went out have been compelled to stay out, their places having been filled. When the strike was declared off the Lackawanna men went to work and manned the engines but they remained only a short time. Last night the engines were idle and for a time this morning it was doubtful if they would be running today. The men, however, have decided to go back to their old places and about 11 o'clock this morning they again went to work. Mr. Barrett this morning declined to be interviewed but said the strike was not off. He has appointed a committee to prepare a statement of the exact condition of affairs and this committee will report today. Mr. Barrett said: "I intend to stay here until victory is won." Mr. Barrett,s stay under these conditions will likely be a protracted one. The roads are all doing full work and can be said to be in a normal condition.

Mr. Sweeney was found in his room at the Genesee house. He looked considerably the worse for the assault upon him yesterday and will carry the marks for some time. Mr. Sweeney said that the strike was formally declared off in accordance with the form prescribed by the constition and any action to continue the strike is in violation of the rules of the order and will not receive the support of that body. Mr. Sweeney left the city at 11 o'clock, probably for Chicago, though he did not announce his destination, and no one at the hotel could furnish the information. Striker Quinn, who assaulted Mr. Sweeney, will not be prosecuted. Superintendent of Police Morgenstein sent detectives to Mr. Sweeney to ask if he desired Quinn arrested. Mr. Sweeney told them that he would not swear out a warrant, and did not wish to press the case. The Lackawanna has fifteen yard engines at work this morning, and nearly all are manned by their old crews. One of the strikers who returned, said: "I have a family to support, and have to work. I saw no sense in remaining out any longer, and I determined to come back to work either as a union man or a non-union man."

Yard Foreman Burke said he thought all the night men would be back at work tonight. Several men had told him they would be back. The attempt to continue the strike is therefore a fizzle and as fast as the men can get back to their old places or new ones they can be depended on to take them. Those who cannot get back may stay on a strike, but their action will have no effect on the railroads. The withdrawal of troops was continued today and by night all but the fourth brigade, which numbers about 2,000 men, will have left the city. The fourth brigade will remain here until General Doyle thinks it safe to order them home. General Porter expects to leave here today.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Some of the Lackawanna and Nickel Plate switchmen struck again at 9 o'clock last night. Tht followers of the Quinn brothers, who participated in the personal attack upon Mr. Sweeney, gathered in force and held a secret meeting yesterday at which they declared themselves in favor of continuing the strike over his head and in spite of him. They were reinforced by a number of Lackawanna switchmen anxious to keep up the fight. The Lackawanna men sent a committee to see Mr. Sweeney, but was unable to find him. They then decided to take matters in their own hands and make a fight. This amounts practically to a secession from the order. The leaders of the secession are Quinn and Miles Barrett, of Chicago. The first to fall in line with this new condition of things were some of the employes of the Lackawanna, of the Nickel Plate, of Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg. Strikes were ordered on the two lines first named, and it was expected every moment that the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg men would join them.

At the Hotels.

F. J. Gould, Marion; J. R. Palmer, Richmond; E. Wrecking, Bluffton; W. H. Powers, Bluffton; C. A. Kitts, Muncie, and J. T. Hammond, are at the Randall.

The guests from Indiana at the Wayne yesterday were W. E. Winchester, Logansport; A. Aronson, Chicago; J. E. Keyer, Huntington; P. C. Barns, Peru; A. D. Chamberlain, Waterloo.

W. A. Dodson, Terre Haute; Jos. Evans, Defiance; C. M. McMahon, Dixon, Ohio; J. B. Sturgis and wife, Milwaukee, were registered at the Aldine yesterday.

MINERS ENTRAPPED.

Over One Hundred Men Entombed by an Explosion—Their Fate Unknown.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—An explosion, which it is feared, may be attended by enormous loss of life, has occurred at Aberkenfig near Brigen in the county of Glamorgan, Wales. One hundred and forty-one miners are entrapped in a coal pit owing to an explosion which shattered the galleries by which they could have made exit, and nothing is known as to their fate. When the explosion took place a volume of coal dust arose from the mouth of the pit and this, along with the rumbling noise, gave notice to the inhabitants that something serious had occured. Women and children rushed to the mouth of the pit, crying and wailing for the fathers, husbands and brothers below. The scenes at the pits mouth were most distressing and efforts were at once made to reach the entombed miners and ascertain the extent of the calamity. These efforts, so far, have proved unsuccessful and the indications are that the explosion may have destroyed every life in the mine. The managers have called on men from neighboring collieries to assist in the work of rescue and the most strenuous exertions are being made to open a way to the unfortunates below. In several instances women have gone frantic over the suspense and some of them have insisted on taking a part in the work. Many hundreds of spectators have assembled from all directions and work is at a standstill in the vicinity, so great and general is the anxiety to ascertain whether those in the mine are alive or not.

QUADRUPLE FATALITY.

Three Children Killed by a Snake and One Drowned, All of One Family.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 26.—A story has reached here from Madison county telling of the sad death of the four children of a family named Wilson in the short time of forty minutes, three of them from the bite of a rattlesnake and the other by drowning. The sad affair occurred a few days ago. Mrs. Wilson went to a spring near the house for water, taking the baby with her. She had left the house but a short time when screams attracted her attention, and hastening there, she found two of her children dead and the third one sick. The little fellow, however, was able to talk, and said that they had poked their fingers through a crack in the floor and a hen under the house had bitten them. Mrs. Wilson hurried back to the spring and there found that her little baby had crawled into the spring and been drowned. When the mother returned to the house she found the little boy also dead. Some time later the father returned. Search was made and a huge rattlesnake was found under the house and killed.

BIG FAILURE.

Salt & Sons, Plush Makers, Driven to the Wall.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A meeting has been summoned of the shareholders in the company of Salt & Sons, owners of the famous factories at Saltaire, on the River Aire, about three miles from Bradford. Saltaire is known as the model village, the late Sir Titus Salt having established the homes for his operatives, with surroundings according to most improved and progressive plans. The business of the company has of late become so depressed that it is seriously proposed to wind it up. The company is a limited one, and was formed in 1881, with a capital £1,500,000, to conduct the business of Mr. Salt. The assets of the concern are valued at upwards of a quarter of a million of pounds sterling beyond liabilities. The trade liabilities are about 200,000 pounds. The firm formerly manufactured altogether alpacas and worsted, but of recent years have chiefly manufactured plush goods. The concern once employed 4,000 operatives and visitors from all parts of the world were pointed with pride to the model town of Sir Titus Salt. The news of the condition of the company has caused a widespread sensation in trade circles.

ALMOST A CALAMITY.

A Serious Accident Happens to an Express Train.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—Pandemonium reigned in a crowded express train at Union station about 10 o'clock this morning. While the Pullman cars were being attached to the western express on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad, control was lost of them and they crashed into a standing section of the train, throwing the passengers in all directions, and smashing platforms and windows at a great rate. A number of passengers were quite severely injured. The injured are: Marcus B. Taylor, Keyport, N. J., severely cut with glass above the eyes and badly bruised; F. S. Witham, Cleveland, painful injuries about the head and George E. Neeves, Milwaukee, cut in face and head. His wife and a young son were also badly cut and bruised. A number of other passengers received minor injuries, but after their wounds had been dressed all continued on their journey. The accident was unavoidable, and it is not thought that any blame can be attached to the trainmen. The brakes failed to hold when applied.

Otto Wiegand was elected leader and manager of the Blue Tassle Serenading club, which met last evening, at the residence of Mr. E. Mathers.

CONSTABLE'S CHASE.

The Rust Boys, to Escape Arrest, Give Constable Schlaudroff a Chase—Court News.

A few months ago Minnie Shopman filed an affidavit in Justice Wilkinson's court against Amiel and August Rust, two young fellows, for assault and battery.

The boys had been attending a dance at the home of the affiant, had raised a row and a fight was the result. They were the aggressive parties and hence warrants were sworn out for their arrest.

These were placed in the hands of Constable Louis Schlaudroff, but before they were issued the Rust boys had left the city. Supposing the trouble had died out and that they would not be arrested, they returned home yesterday for a short visit.

Constable Schlaudroff heard of their presence in the city and at 5 o'clock this morning was at the home of their father in Frenchtown, where the boys slept, ready to arrest them for their offense. But they were on their guard and when the constable rapped at the front door for admittance, they were notified of his presence. Hastily putting on part of their clothing they got through a window onto a back roof and then jumped to the ground. Both of them were barefooted and without their coats and they ran like deer.

Constable Schlaudroff saw them and immediately gave chase, but they were too fleet-footed. He followed them as far as Williams' grove and here they escaped him.

WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

The coroner's inquest in the case of old Tom Carey, whose death was told in last evening's SENTINEL, he being found yesterday morning in an unconscious condition along the St. Mary's river and conveyed to the hospital, where he died during the afternoon, developes the fact that he was struck by lightning during the storm of Wednesday night. When he was undressed at the undertaking rooms the upper part of his body was found to be blistered and bore every indication of having been struck by lightning. The coroner will render a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The old man was buried today.

YOUTHFUL TRAMPS.

Deputy Sheriff Stoll and Constable Harrod went out to the fair grounds this morning and arrested four young fellows, who were "camped out" there, on the charge of vagrancy. They gave their names in police court as James Miller, George Weller, George Brotherton and William Courmean, and their ages were from seventeen to twenty years. They said they came from Kalamazoo, although they had told the officers they were from Jackson, Mich., and other places. Their stories were contradictory, and the mayor sent them to jail for seventeen days. The officers have a suspicion that they are the fellows who have been committing the burglaries in this city during the last few days.

COURT NEWS.

Jacob Rohrer sues Anna Rohrer in the superior court for a divorce. Henry Colerick and J. E. K. France are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Justice Hays decided the case of Susan E. Hayden against C. F. Haiber by giving a judgment against the defendant for $4.29 and against the plaintiff for all costs after the tender to confess judgment had been made. The plaintiff will appeal the case to the superior court.

Peter Smuck was sent to jail for drunkenness. His was the only case in police court this morning.

Dr. K. K. Wheelock has qualified as executor of the estate of his father, Dr. E. G. Wheelock.

The case of Margaret F. Beaty vs David Gleckner et al. has been appealed from Esquire John Sheahan, of Monroe township, to the circuit court.

John S. Postal had his preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Leonard yesterday on the charge of having opened letters addressed to the Acme Portrait company. Mrs. Postal testified that she opened the letters, and on this evidence Postal was dismissed.

Ernest Bromeier was yesterday granted a permit to build a frame house on lot 622 Hanna's addition to cost $1,300.

Justice France fined Josephine Bender $1 and costs for assault and battery on Frederick Bushore. He also fined Chas. Bowers $1 and costs for beating his wife. The case of the state against Richard Taylor for provoking Eliza Wise has been set for trial on September 7, at 9 o'clock. The case of the state against Fred Bushore for provoking Joseph Bender is on trial this afternoon before Justice France.

Daniel Ryan, J. P., performed a pretty wedding ceremony yesterday afternoon, the contracting parties being Mr. James Hathaway and Miss Vera L. Lyons.

Justice Ryan will hear the case of the state against the Pennsylvania company on September 6.

At 6 o'clock last evening Justice Jame Wilkinson married Mr. Frederick Freimeier and Miss Mary Gattermann. The groom is the young pastry cook at the Wayne hotel, while the bride is from Danville, Ill. The parents of the bride arrived last evening and were present at the wedding.

Justice France had two old maids before him yesterday, an affidavit having been sworn out for their arrest. Genial Jim Robinson, the attorney, knows all about the case. Justice France would not give the names of the parties nor the facts to THE SENTINEL reporter.

A gang of house breakers infest our city and two or three burglaries a week is the rule. Yesterday the home of William Fahlsing was visited and some jewelry and money stolen. Today we are called upon to chronicle the robbery at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. H. Schroeder, No. 181 West Washington street. Last evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, Mrs. Schroeder locked the doors of her residence and went down town on a shopping tour. She did not expect to be absent from the house over an hour and consequently thought it unnecessary to close and bar the windows. Upon her return she was surprised to find the front door open. Visions of burglaries passed before her and she hastened to the place where her own and Mr. Schroeder's gold watches were deposited. They were missing. So was $20 in cash. Investigation showed that the thief had gained an entrance to the house by loosening and rolling up a corner of a wire screen in the bay window. He must have been surprised in his pillaging, for a valuable gold necklace and some other pieces of jewelry were found lying on the floor, where he had dropped them in his hasty retreat. Mr. Schroeder's watch, which the owner valued at $110, bore his name upon the inside of the lid, and the lady's watch bears the name, Louise D. Schroeder. Both are hunting-case watches. Chief Wilkinson and Sergeant Borgman visited the Schroeder residence last evening in the hopes of gaining a clue to the burglars and are today working on the case. The officers think a new gang of burglars are at work in the city and that the party who entered Mr. Schroeder's residence is also guilty of robbing Mr. Fahlsing.

THE EXODUS.

Knights Now Deserting Kansas City—Fighting Over the Next Meeting Point.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 26.—The knights have quited down considerably this morning and many of them have left for their homes. The out going trains have been filled to their utmost capacity and those tonight will carry all but those companies and divisions which have participated in the drills. The drilling at the park is going on this morning and will probably be completed today. The supreme lodge is in session wrestling with the matter of location for the biennial encampment and will probably decide this point this afternoon. Louisville has a good lead and the indication now is that she will get it, although Minneapolis is coming in strong with great hopes based on her ability to care for the republican convention. Other cities which are competing are considered out of the race, and the real contest lies between these two. The business of the supreme lodge will be finished this evening, and tomorrow only the remnant of what was to be the greatest thing ever seen in Kansas City will be left. It has been a great disappointment to the citizens, as the crowd which remained here over night never at any time exceeded thirty thousand people, and provisions had been made to accommodate one hundred thousand.

OLD AMERICA

Has Something to Say About the Morals of the City.

FORT WAYNE, Aug. 26, '92.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

An article in THE SENTINEL of the 25th inst. having special allusion to the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. and other free reading rooms as a means of drawing our young men thereto, has suggested the following thoughts:

Standing at the door of the first named institution the eye can take in no less than eleven grog shops, all of which, except one, are magnificently furnished and may properly be called "gilded hells." Now the writer is prepared to show that either one of these "saloons," so called, is sending to perdition ten of our young men for every one that is saved through the instrumentality of all three reading rooms combined. Standing in front of the one near the Third Presbyterian church, for railroad men especially, the very same can be said with equal truth. And not far off is a beer garden where those who have little modesty go in and come out. Now, Mr. Editor, I do feel anxious to have the following question answered: If a fire is raging all combine to put it out. In these places the fires of passion are kindled, 150,000 murders are committed every year and $1,500,000,000 are wasted and yet why, yes, why is it that even the ministers of church pass them by unheeded at all hours of the day and night, yea, and sometimes enter them and take a drink. It is this which makes their keepers strut in their boots and feel themselves respectable. An exchange paper from North Carolina makes the statement that the commissioners refused to grant a "license" to every one who applied, upon the ground that a man who was mean enough to keep a dram shop could not possibly be a man "of good moral character," as required by law. I leave the reader to judge of the wisdom in such a decision.

OLD AMERICAN.

The regular annual excursion over the Pittsburg road for Yellowstone park and the Pacific coast, passed through town today about noon. It left New York yesterday and was in charge of Mr. C. W. Reiff, of the Pennsylvania company.

REAR-END COLLISION.

One Pittsburg Freight Train Runs Into Another—Brakeman Knillen Injured.

A serious smash-up occurred at Davis, a small station on the west end of the Pittsburg road, at 4 o'clock this morning. Nos. 72 and 78, freight trains, were coming east, the former being in the lead. At Davis No. 72 stopped, and before the engineer of the following train took in the situation his engine struck the caboose and plowed its way through eight cars. The engineer and fireman of No. 78 and the conductor and brakemen on No. 72 jumped and saved themselves from serious injury, though Brakeman Knillen sustained several severe bruises. Engineer George Kensill was also considerably shaken up and bruised by jumping from his engine, but his injuries did not prevent him joining the other trainmen in doing what they could to clear the track of the wreckage. The damage to the company is considerable. One caboose and eight box cars were piled up promiscuously on the track and some of them are a total loss. The trainme claim that the accident was due to th heavy fog which prevailed at that hou Both sections of No. 3, the west bou passenger train, ran around the wre over the Nickel Plate road. The wre cars from this city and Valparaiso we soon at the scene and the blockade w removed by 10 o'clock.

CROWNED WITH VICTORY.

The City Band Beats Its Competit at Rome City.

The City band crowned itself wi victory at the band tournament Rome City yesterday. The news preceded the band to this city and wh the train pulled into the depot l evening a number of the boys' frien were there to greet them with congratulations. The band formed in marching order and headed a large procession down to band headquarters. Victory was reflected from every countenance, while $125 in gold, the leading tournament prize, in the right-hand pocket o Treasurer Reineke's trousers, jingled in unison with the drums and cymbals.

The band tournament at Rome City was a brilliant affair. The famous Battle Creek band was present, contested for the prize and was defeated for the first time although they had a half-dozen imported musicians to help them out. This band is a splendid musical organization, having a membership of twenty-two and a full complement of reed instruments. They played well but the Fort Wayne boys played better and carried off the prize. In this contest six bands had entered but only two appeared—the Fort Wayne and the Battle Creek. When the scores were footed up the result showed Fort Wayne's little band of sixteen men with a total of eighty-three and one-half points out of a possible ninety, while Battle Creek scored eighty-two. Auburn won the first and Kendallville the second prize in the second class contest. In the third class Lima, Ind., carried off the honors with Hawpatch, Ind., and Hopkins, Mich., following in the order named.

The judges were Prof. John T. Howell, of McComb, Ohio; Prof. J. C. Sack, of Ligonier, and Herman Freygang, of Angola.

AN ELDER SURPRISED.

The U. B. Conference Delegate Give Elder Roberts a Hat.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the United Brethren conference was devoted to listening to the reports of the committees on districts and boundaries. The assembly favored only two districts, instead of three, as recommended by the committees. Elder Roberts and Elder Lower, chairmen respectively of the committees of the east and west districts, read their reports and the same were accepted.

At the close of the session last evening the members of the conference remained in their seats, while Rev. Stewart advanced to the pulpit and in behalf of the assembly presented Elder Roberts with a fine silk hat, which the astonished elder gracefully accepted with a few brief remarks.

This morning after devotional services by Rev. M. Miller the session was continued by listening to the report on missionary work, after which Dr. Booth lectured on "Home, Frontier and Foreign Missions." Brief addresses on the same subject were also made by E. Baldue and H. S. Thomas.

This evening at 8 o'clock devotional services will be conducted by Rev. Sluey, the publishing agent, of Dayton, Ohio.

PILSNERS PHOTOGRAPHED.

The Ball Team Have Their Pictures Taken.

The Pilsner base ball club had a group picture taken the other day by Artist Shoaff, and the boys all look handsome in it. In the center is Manager M. F. Belger, looking pleasant and smiling, as he always does.

The club will play next Sunday at Celina, Ohio, and September 4 will go to Kalamazoo, Mich. On Labor day they will be at Plymouth and in the near future will go to Lagrange to play for a gold medal.

Two Democratic Nominations.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 26.—Late last night the democratic state convention nominated H. J. Snively, of Yakima, for governor.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, Aug. 26.—The democrats have nominated John M. Burke of Spokane county, for governor on the tenth ballot.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22nd day of August, 1892. D. W. SOUDER, Clerk.

THIS DAY IN THE PAST.

1676—Sir Robert Walpole, Earl of Oxford, who "reduced bribery to a science," born; died 1745.

1785—Lord George Sackville, soldier and statesman, died.

1813—Karl Theodor Korner, martial lyrist, killed while fighting in the German army against Napoleon; born 1791.

1819—Prince Albert Francis Augustus Charles Emanuel of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, husband of Queen Victoria, born at Rosenau castle, Coburg; died 1861.

1832—Dr. Adam Clarke, divine and Biblical commentator, died.

1850—Louis Philippe, ex-king of France, died at Clairmont, England; born 1773.

1864—Battle of Bayou Tensas, La.

1871—Charles Scribner, publisher and founder of the magazine, died in Switzerland; born 1821.

1879—City of Tokay, Hungary, destroyed by fire.

TONIGHT.

JEFFERSON CLUB—Meet at their hall.

AUGLAIZE CONFERENCE—In session at the U. B. church.

HAMILTON FIELDS—Sam J. Roberts' Theatrical company.

LODGES—Fort Wayne 19, A. O. U. W.; Kekionga Council.

EINTRACHT SINGING SOCIETY—Business meeting.

The days are growing shorter.

SEPTEMBER will be here next Thursday.

THE Jeffersonian club will hold a meeting tonight.

THE political campaign will be pretty lively next month.

THE president has appointed Robert Forrester mine inspector for Utah.

THE street car company are getting their new Clinton street line ready for electric cars.

THE cholera may cross the ocean. Let Fort Wayne be kept clear of filth and be prepared for this terrible scourge.

THE Louisiana lottery wants to get headquarters in the Sandwich islands. Better send it to the bottom of the sea with McGinty.

THE Hendricks club of Indianapolis will celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the illustrious Thomas A. Hendricks September 7.

HENRY A. GARFIELD, eldest son of the late president, is to be a professor in the new law school of the Western Reserve university at Cleveland.

FORT WAYNE is proud of her city band which won the first honors in the musical tournament at Rome City yesterday. Our band is one of the best in the country.

CONGRESSIONAL nominations were made as follows on Tuesday: Iowa, Sixth district, Frederick White (dem.); Illinois, Ninth district, N. S. Scrivens (people's); Minnesota, First district, William H. Harris (dem.); Tennessee, Seventh district, N. N. Cox (dem.)

GENERAL WEAVER, the nominee of the people's party for president, gives it as his deliberate judgement, from having visited and made careful observations, that Colorado, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho and Wyoming will go for the people's party nominee.

THE people's party county central committee had a meeting yesterday and selected the following officers: Chairman, J. Schwerzgen; secretary, O. H. Ballard; treasurer, L. C. Kasten. It was decided to open the campaign immediately and several meetings will be held next week.

LAKE passenger travel, which was greatly depressed after the panic of 1873, shows signs of revival. The summer travel this year has been great. It is predicted that lake passenger traffic will boom during the fair, and that a business long fallen into a condition of innocuous desuetude will regain its old time vigor.

THE national convention of letter carriers, held at Indianapolis this week, elected the following officers: President, Frank E. Smith, San Francisco; vice president, Martin W. Malone, Philadelphia; secretary, John F. Victory, New York; treasurer, Alexander McDonald, Grand Rapids; sergeant-at-arms, E. F. Dougherty, Dayton. Wm. M. Slater, of this city, was selected as a member of the executive board.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE has returned from her summer tour abroad, but did not bring her present husband, Mr. Willie Wilde, with her. She explains to an interested world that Willie suffers from stomach and liver troubles, and will remain on the other side because this climate is too stimulating for him. As a husband Mr. Wilde is evidently a disappointment, but as advertising material for the madame he may still be made to serve.

THE Indiana fruit crop this year is so far inferior to what the state usually produces that the world's fair board has about decided to make no fruit exhibit from the crop of 1892. It is likely the state authorities will notify the world's fair management that the Indiana fruit exhibit will not be put in place until the latter part of the summer or early fall of 1893. The crop of 1893 will then be waited for to furnish specimens for exhibition.

THE edict of the fashionable Boston is that spoons shall be practically banished from the table, their use being reduced to the lowest possible limit. This is all very well for fashionable Boston, but the women all over the country who have succeeded at much trouble and expense in securing large stocks of souvenir spoons will hardly permit any such authority to dictate to them. Those spoons have to be displayed; it is a feminine necessity.

H. P. SCHERER.

Adopted.

Whereas, The drainage at the southwest corner of Berry and Van Buren streets is improper and water continually stands at said place after every rain, therefore be it,

Resolved, That the street commissioner be and is hereby instructed to investigate the matter and remedy the same.
CHAS. H. BUCK.

Referred to committee on streets and street commissioner.

Whereas, The city hall now being constructed on East Berry street, covers the entire width of the lot on which said building is located and

Whereas, For the proper light and ventilation of the offices on the east side of said building, it is necessary for the city to own sufficient ground, and

Whereas, The erection of any building to be used for any purpose upon the vacant ground east of said city building would be detrimental not only to the health and comfort of such city officers as would be located in the east rooms of said city building, but would also detract from and injure the appearance of said city building, therefore be it

Resolved, That the committee on public grounds and buildings be and is hereby instructed to confer with the owners of the lot east of the new city hall, and ascertain on what terms and conditions they will sell thirty or forty feet of said lot to the city and report at the next regular meeting of the common council.
C. B. OAKLEY.

WOMEN AS TELEGRAPHERS.

They Have Not Been Successful in Handling Press Reports.

In the work of receiving and sending messages women do equally as good work as men. They may not be capable of such phenomenal bursts of speed as the male telegraphers, but at the same time extraordinary speed is not so much an element of success or necessity as accuracy and the ability to maintain a fair average rate. They perform really creditable work, and a great point in their favor is their reliability. As yet women have not been successful in the handling of press reports. Day and night the Associated Press and the United Press send many thousands of words to the newspapers in all parts of the country, and the wires are almost exclusively in charge of men. The immense amount of matter to be handled necessitates a very high rate of speed, forty-eight words a minute being maintained for hours at a stretch. A woman's strength is hardly equal to such a task. Since the introduction of typewriters into telegraph offices women have taken kindly to the machines, and in their use have become proficient. The typewriter reduces the labor very materially.

"I AM SHOT."

On a Hot Night She Weltered in Soda-Water Gore.

A lady stopping in New York during a "hot spell," was much troubled by fear of burglars. She had just dropped asleep one night, when she was aroused by a sharp report, like that of a pistol, and felt a tingling sensation in her shoulder. Putting up her hand, she was horrified to find her night-gown saturated with some fluid, which she was sure was blood. "Henry, Henry!" she cried to her sleeping husband, "I am shot; I am bleeding to death!" "Nonsense, Em," her callous husband replied, as he got up and lit the gas; "you have been dreaming." "But I am wet with blood," persisted the terrified woman. "You are wet, but not with blood," said the husband; "it's——" and he burst into roars of laughter. He had unwired a bottle of soda-water during the evening, but not opened it. It lay on a table, pointing directly at the bed, and it was evident that, exploding under the heat, it had shot the cork and half the soda-water across the room, and hit the lady as she slept.

TAKES THE BUN.

A Story That Cannot Be Equaled in the Records of the Ananias Club.

Adam Boeck, a real estate man of St. Louis, has a son, Walter, who is a great story-teller. He had been up to the Northern lakes replenishing his fund. Here's one of the best stories he has been inflicting on his friends since his return: "One day when I was out rowing on Spirit lake, I saw a sight the like of which I never expect to see again. It was terribly hot; so hot, in fact, that the waves seemed to be getting tanned from the continual exposure to Old Sol. Why, really, even the fish seemed to be getting warm. Well, maybe they weren't, but anyhow I know that the water was running off them in regular wavelets. They rose to the surface in great numbers, but there was only one of them equal to the emergency. He came right up in full view of our boat and gently lifting his tail above the surface he playfully began to fan himself. Maybe you fancy we weren't surprised! We only wished we were as cool as that fish.

She Killed the Snake and Died.

A negro woman, who lived near Charleston, S. C., left her home to pick berries. While moving about in the berry patch she saw a large rattlesnake curled up ready to strike her. She started to run, but her dress caught in the bush, and in an instant the reptile struck her, his fangs penetrating her hand. He at once recoiled and again plunged at her, sinking his fangs in her hand a second time. He made a third strike, this time at her face.

The poor woman, with remarkable courage, caught the snake by the neck and beat its head against a stone until it was dead. Almost immediately she was overcome by the poison and fell unconscious a few steps away from the body of the rattlesnake. There she was found by neighbors and revived long enough to tell her story. She died soon after being taken home.

A Traveling Man's Experience With Diarrhœa.

I am a traveling man and have been afflicted with what is called chronic diarrhœa for some ten years. Last fall I was in western Pennsylvania, and accidentally was introduced to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. I ventured to make a trial and was wonderfully relieved. I would like now to introduce it among my friends. H. M. LEWIS, 21 Freeman street, Cleveland, Ohio. For sale by druggists.

TEARS.

Not in the time of pleasure
Hope doth set her bow;
But in the sky of sorrow,
Over the vale of woe.

Through gloom and shadow look we
On beyond the years;
The soul would have no rainbow
Had the eyes no tears.

CLEVER AUNT KATE.

"It ain't no use in going agin your pa, Jennie—he's had his own way 'round here continual for mor'n thirty years, an you'll jest have to give in; no use talkin at him. "T only makes him wuss."

Poor little Mrs. Olcott had been accustomed during the whole of her married life to "just give in," and her only chance of peace was in yielding to her selfishly determined husband and allowing him to carry his point without opposition.

Jennie was differently constructed. She inherited her father's strong will and he had, much to his surprise, suddenly discovered an opposing force in his youngest child.

She had been away from home for nearly three years—this pretty brown haired girl with the determined face and graceful carriage, and the father secretly admired and almost feared her.

A wealthy and childless aunt in the city had besought Jennie to share her home, and Hiram Olcott's pretty daughter, though clinging to the farm with all its dear memories of childhood and childhood's joys, chose wisely when she yielded to her aunt's request.

It was better, far better for her, for even after her departure there were plenty of children to keep the miserly old farmer in a perpetual grumble about money matters.

It was May and the country wore one glad smile, and Jennie hailed with delight the prospect of a visit to her home, assuming very willingly the responsibility of housekeeping while her two unmarried sisters attended the wedding of a cousin in a distant town.

This morning she was cooking, and with her sleeves rolled above her elbows stood beside the kitchen table. In one hand she held an earthen plate, while the clip, clip, clip of a fork sounded noisily as she whipped some eggs to a froth.

"Yer sisters had to marry to suit him," wailed the nervous little woman, "an you'll have to too; of you don't there'll be awful fusses, so you'd jes' better give in."

That morning the father had spoken to Jennie of a young farmer, whom he termed a "likely catch." She had expressed her opinion of him in so decided a way as to alarm Mrs. Olcott for the safety of his much prized authority.

He was won't to speak of himself as a marvelous example of the patriarch. "Make 'em mind," he would say. "Keep yer household beneath your foot; govern 'em well, and they'll git along."

Jennie's boldness in opposing his judgment so stupefied him that his anger had not yet had time to blaze forth, but Mrs. Olcott knew it would come, and so after her husband had left the kitchen she pleaded with the girl to "give in." Jennie had been very thoughtful during the little woman's appeal, but now she was resolved, and it was the Olcott in her nature which spoke. "I wouldn't marry Jordan Moggs though father should threaten to murder me."

The eggs were stiff now, and as she set the plate down on the table she turned from her mother and busied herself among the ingredients for cake baking which were before her. Jennie was blushing as she began softly. "There is some one in Poole I like very much, mother, and he's coming out here, too."

"He needn't mind comin," said Farmer Olcott grimly, as he quietly stepped into the kitchen. His face wore a cunning leer and his wind reddened cheeks were distorted by the sneering curves of his hard-lined mouth.

Seating himself on one of the painted wooden chairs he drew the bootjack toward him and took off his heavy shoes with a calmness and deliberation which warned Mrs. Olcott that he was thoroughly aroused. The poor little nervous, broken-spirited woman had learned that this particularly quiet and inoffensive manner of removing his footgear always preceded a burst of passion.

Hiram Olcott set his cowhide boots by the stove to dry, kicked the jack under the table, and, turning toward his daughter, shouted:

"Don't let me ketch none o' yer city fellers comin' to see you. Ef they do I'll talk to 'em; not a word now," he growled, shaking his long finger menacingly at Jennie as she essayed to speak.

"I'm master in my own house and you'll not talk till such time as I am done. You've been away and kinder forgot how things is run here, but you might as well get broke in now. I tell you I won't have any city fellers a-follerin' you, and if I ketch your Aunt Kate makin' any matches for you I'll just bring you home from bein' a fine lady down there and set you workin'."

Before Jennie could speak he had gone into the dining room, slamming the door behind him.

Tears of mortification and rage stood in her brown eyes and hot words leaped to her lips, but as she glanced down at the agonized face of the little woman beside her the fierce mood changed. She bent to kiss the pain drawn lips murmuring, "Never mind, mother dear; I'll be patient for your sake."

"That's a good girl, Jennie," replied Mrs. Olcott with a sigh of relief; "try and git along peaceable like; an' jes' give in for the sake of quiet. Yer pa's gettin' wuss and wuss."

Jennie wrote a partial account of what had occurred to her Aunt Kate, and this was the answer of that clever woman:

MY DEAR NIECE:—Your father needs managing and I will undertake to do it. I have written to him to come down to the city and advise me about the sale of a piece of property, and you need not be surprised at anything that happens."

Mrs. Kate Calding was the only one in the world who ever did understand her brother Hiram, and she planned a clever little ruse to be played on the unsuspecting farmer.

Mr. Bryan, whom Jennie had confessed to her mother she cared a great deal for, was well suited to her. He had not yet declared his love, but it was not unguessed by the shrewd little maiden. To Mrs. Calding, however, he had opened his heart, and she bade him wait a little. She knew how prejudiced her brother was against all arrangements not conducted by himself, and rightly concluded that he might put serious difficulty in the way of the young people.

After satisfying herself that the name of Jennie's lover was quite unknown to her brother, she resolved to introduce him as a young man who would be a good match for Jennie, if only the girl would be wise enough to think so. Allowing him to believe they had never met, she trusted to his unequaled obstinacy to do the rest.

"I've wanted so much to talk with you about Jennie," said the lady, as she and Hiram sat in her well appointed dining room the night of the arrival.

"Yes, and I'm willin'. She ought to be settled," said the old man decidedly.

"It does not do, Hiram," began Mrs. Calding, watching the hard lined face intently, "to depend on a girl's choice, and"——

"Well, I guess it don't," he interrupted, with a sneer.

"There is a young man in town who I know admires Jennie, and if he should meet her I know something would come of it." Very quickly, yet with the utmost caution she made this statement.

The old man was interested. "Eh?" he inquired rubbing his hands gently together.

"Yes," was the answer; then she went on:

"Of course, it's so very uncertain, Hiram. You see, Jennie might refuse to have a word to say to him and——"

"Now, Kate, look here," interrupted the thoroughly excited old man, as he drew his chair nearer hers and emphasized his words with decisive gestures, "ef I like that young man I'll just take him on home with me, an' I'd like to see Jennie tell him to go if I'm livin'."

Mrs. Calding was delighted at her success thus far. The next day Mr. Bryan was introduced, and became the old man's ideal of a son-in-law.

On the farmer's return to his home Mr. Bryan accompanied him, having accepted the hearty invitation of his new friend to "jest run out and take a look around our part of the country."

Jennie had been apprised of Mr. Bryan's coming and of the little deception in which she was to play her part. She met him as if he were a stranger, while her father secretly rejoiced at the thought of subduing his proud young daughter.

Mr. Olcott took an early opportunity to enlighten Jennie as to her duty toward her new friend, and with a twinkle in her eye she promised to do her best to please him in the matter.

A week passed. Jennie and Mr. Bryan were very happy. The days were delightful ones to them, and the old farmer rubbed his hands at the success of his scheme and gave his consent to an early marriage with no hesitation.

He often speaks now of his matchmaking. "There's Jennie," he will say. "She'd hev picked up with some empty noddled city chap ef I hadn't just took her in hand. I brung Bryan out and told her that she'd got to behave to him. It's the only way to do—jest make 'em mind and they'll git along."

They would not undeceive him for anything—the happy young couple—but when he boasts they think with loving gratitude of clever Aunt Kate. —Drake's Magazine.

THE SPIDER HAWK.

A Wasp of the Colorado Mountains the Miner's Friend.

The miners of Colorado who have built cabins on the mountain sides know what a pest the small, brown wood spider proves to be. They throw their webs over your best clothes, cooking utensils in every corner where you can get them in your eyes and mouth. Not only that, but they will drop into the frying pan, water bucket or upon the table when you are eating. But nature has furnished us a remedy and a friend when she gave us the spider hawk, says the Great Divide.

The name is given by miners to a small steel-blue wasp about three-fourths of an inch in length. He can easily be recognized by the quick, nervous strokes of his wings. They build a nest up among the rafters of your cabin of wood pulp or furze from the outer coating of old dead trees. Then they are ready for business. Every few minutes you can see your hawk climbing up the rafters with a spider, sometimes carrying one four or five times his own weight.

Sometimes they get a spider so heavy that they will fall many times before they succeed in reaching their nest. They never give up but keep on trying until they succeed. When the spider is safely placed in the nest the female hawk deposits her egg in the dead body. The hawks live only in pairs as far as my observation goes. They become rather tame and seem to be obliged to you for building the spider trap for their benefit.

Look out for the spider hawks if you are troubled with spiders in your cabin, and they will look out for you.

Simple Method of Removing Wrinkles.

It is easier to remove winkles than to eradicate any other defect of the face, and yet we daily see many faces, otherwise beautiful, rendered prematurely old by that shrinkage of the tissue we call wrinkles. A simple, but positive, treatment is Marquard's Rose Cream, which not only disperses wrinkles speedily but also removes pimples, blotches, eruptions, and lends an exquisite glow and transparency to the complexion. COOLNESS OF SAILORS.

Even in Moments of Collision They Take It Quietly.

One of the passengers of the Marechal Canrobert tells how the vessel was run down by the Hoche. His account does not show where the fault is, for the passengers saw nothing until the moment of the accident. Opinions are much divided on the subject, but the general feeling is that the captain of the Marechal Canrobert was very imprudent in trying, with a vessel making twelve knots, to pass in front of ten men-of-war, covering a large space and making seventeen or eighteen knots.

What seems to have excited the admiration of all was the presence of mind and activity shown by the captain and crew of each vessel in the terrible situation which lasted nearly sixteen minutes before the Marechal Canrobert sank.

The captain of the Hoche had grappled the Marechal Canrobert, and his sailors, rushing on board, seized the passengers and hurried them on the deck of the gunboat. Not till they felt that the steamer was going down did the sailors hurry back to the Hoche. The captain of the Marechal Canrobert was the last to leave his ship. But for the coolness of the captains and crews there must have been great loss of life.

Il Re Galantuomo.

A charming anecdote was told to me to-day about King Victor Emmanuel, illustrative of the bravura manner that won him the name of "Il Re Galentumomo." It goes far to explain why success crowned his efforts to weld Italy into one state under the house of Savoy.

After a battle, in which the carnage was terrible, he went to visit a field hospital. Speaking pleasantly, as his wont was, to a poor fellow who had lost both his legs, he asked him about his family, telling the aid-de-camp to make a note of their names, and promising to look after them.

The mutilated invalid said, in a flush of grateful feeling, "May I be allowed to kiss the King's hand?" "My friend, I should much rather shake yours," said Victor Emmanuel, shaking the hand of the soldier.

Spelling in New York.

A small basement candy shop in the French quarter of New York adds to the seduction of sweets the promise of prizes to all who purchase in considerable quantities. A pasteboard sign in the shop window bears this odd legend: "Look, look! For each cent you will buy candy you get a ticket! Bring your tickets you get a preasent." In the list of "preasents" is a "nice tchain" offered to the possessor of fifty tickets.

Punctuation Points.

Punctuation points are comparatively modern. Only the period is more than 500 years old. The colon is reputed to date from 1485, the comma about 1520, the semicolon about 1570 and others have been gradually added. It is obvious, then, that writing, printing and other orthographic arts might dispense in our day with many of their marks of punctuation and lose nothing of the sense.

Geo. B. Sinex, boilermaker at the Pittsburg shops, went to Chicago this morning to take the place, for a couple of weeks, of one of the company's boilermakers there, who is sick.

If the Pennsylvania company ever had any intentions of removing its shops from Crestline to Mansfield it has abandoned them and will expend a good deal of money in enlarging the yards of the company at Crestline and making other needed improvements at that point.

Michael McGary is removing with his family from Fort Wayne to Plymouth, where they will make their permanent home. Mr. McGary will retain his through run on the Pittsburg and be home over Sunday every week. Since coming to Fort Wayne they have lost one child from diphtheria.

Yesterday afternoon Henry Kammeier, the day hostler at the Nickel Plate roundhouse, had his thumb and index finger from the first joint mashed by being caught between a coal dump and engine 167. Dr. Bell dressed his hand and said that it would be several days before he would be able to resume his work. Fireman F. Smith will do Mr. Kammeier's work till he is well and able to return.

George W. Boyd, the well known assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg, has just closed his tenth year in that position. In speaking of this the Pittsburg Post says: "George W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railway company, with headquarters in Philadelphia, is one of the most widely known and popular officials of that company. He is a thoroughly efficient passenger man, being energetic, far-seeing and courteous. He has numerous friends and acquaintances in Pittsburg and indeed all along the line to Philadelphia. He was born at Indianapolis in 1848, and entered the railway service at Indianapolis in 1863 as a clerk in the freight department of the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. From June 1, 1872, to January 1, 1874, he was cashier of the passenger department of the Pennsylvania railroad. For the next eight years until January 1, 1882, he was chief clerk of the passenger department, and for the last ten years he has occupied his present important position."

JACK AND THE STEERS.

He Didn't Lie About Them, But He Concealed Something.

There once resided near Kansas City an old farmer who believed in every boy starting out for himself. But his son Jack, a lazy, shiftless fellow, was of an entirely different opinion. However, the old man finally persuaded him to go to Kansas and take up land. Jack was fitted out with a yoke of oxen, a good supply of tools and a very small supply of money, as his father thought that he could not starve so long as he had the means of earning his bread, and that an empty stomach would induce him to do work which otherwise he would never perform. For a long time Jack did not come home, relates the Detroit Free Press, but at last a letter arrived requesting the old man to immediately send him money to buy another yoke of oxen, as those that he had taken with him had died a violent death. The farmer was far too wise to send any cash, but he desired to encourage the boy and so he picked out the two very best steers he had and shipped them without delay.

After another interval of silence a second letter came announcing that these steers had also died, and urging the necessity of an immediate remittance. As winter was fast approaching, and the Kansas climate did not seem to agree with cattle, the farmer decided not to send any more steers just then, but sent instead an old superannuated mare called Dolly, with which he thought his son could manage to gather in his crops. In about a month a note arrived, short and to the point, as follows:

"Terrible blizzards and no crops; am now living off Dolly's last leg; send money at once or I will starve to death. JACK."

The money was sent and Jack told to come home. When he arrived he looked as if the Kansas blizzards had been practicing with his clothes.

"Jack," said his father, "why did you lie to me about those steers?"

"I didn't," answered Jack. "I told you that they had died a violent death, but I did not think it necessary to add that I had killed them myself to keep from starving."

At last accounts Jack was still patiently waiting for his father's shoes.

It is what Hood's Sarsaparilla actually does that tells the story of its merit and has given it the largest sale of any medicine.

DOG SAVED A THRONE.

The Rout of Kalakaua's Mutinous Army by Gillig's Bull Pup.

A few who know are telling the merry tale of how Harry Gillig's bull pup put down a revolution, saved a throne and scattered the leaguering armies of the rebels—all in the opera bouffe kingdom of the Colorado Maduros. This is the story George Nagle tells:

"We were at the island a year or two ago—Harry Gillig, Frank Unger, myself, and 'Pierrot.' Pierrot was Harry's bull pup, the joy of his owner's life, the pride of his heart. He was a fierce, bloodthirsty-looking brute, and whenever a true sport would pass him the covetous regard which the man would show for the dog would make the cold chills of apprehension play leap-frog in Gillig's spinal marrow. As a matter of fact, though, Pierrot was as playful and quite as harmless as a kitten. He never bit anything in his life except the sweetbreads, chateaubrians, and such delicacies with which his owner fed him.

"Well," at the islands David Kalakaua was king, and a kindlier man never lived. He showed us marked attention, arranged feasts in our behalf, and made me governor of an island for a day. He spent nearly as much time at our cottage as he did at the palace, which was close at hand. We grew to have a genuine regard for him, because, whatever his faults, he was every inch a king in the generosity of his impulses and the love he bore his subjects.

"There was a condition then prevailing at the islands somewhat similar to that preceding the arrest of Wilcox, Ashford, and the other conspirators. Discontent muttered on the corners. An indefinable strain was in the political atmosphere. Without knowing why the onlooker felt that rebellion might set the alarm bells ringing at any moment. The wrecking of a government might have been precipitated by the jostling of a man on the sidewalk.

"The king was uneasy, though he kept a smiling face and his customary affability. Feeling as we did toward him, we shared in a measure his anxiety, and awaited the expected denouement with feverish impatience.

"The army was giving trouble. It had felt its power by putting down (with the aid of the baseball pitcher) the first Wilcox revolution. It became unreasonable in its demands and the king was soon involved in trouble with his own troops.

"You know the Hawaiian army consists of about sixty-seven men and half as many officers. But though small, it is the one military prop of the island kingdom, and it has relatively as much power and importance as the kaiser's marshaled millions. And so it was that when fierce discontent and widespread denunciation were rife in the army the people's faces blanched and apprehension mingled in the merriest rout.

"At last it came. One night as Gillig and I sat on the porch of our cottage we heard 'the roll of the stirring drum' and the clangorous marching of armed men.

"'The revolution has begun! The army is marching on the palace!' shouted Gillig.

"Being a brave, aggressive man Harry grabbed a revolver and started on the run for the palace inclosure. Being more or less of a fool I ran after him without any revolver. Being a dog Pierrot ran after us both.

"When we reached the palace we found the entire army just drawing into line in front of it! There was all the thunder of the captains and the shouting which a man's heart could wish. The army had come to make a demand on the king, and was prepared to enforce it with bullet and bayonet.

"Now, pretty much everything on that trip had been arranged for Pierrot's amusement. So when he saw the glare of the palace lamps he supposed it was there as part of his fun. With a bark and a bound he started to enjoy the army.

"Wow!

"When Pierrot started for the army the army saw him coming. With his bow legs, wide jaw, and red, overhanging jowl, he seemed a ravening beast. His onslaught was quick and noisy.

"The army stood its ground a moment and then began to beat a retreat. The retreat was in an instant a rout. The rout became a scramble, with the dog take the hindmost for every man's motto. This was all the more fun for Pierrot. He gave expression to his joy in wild yowls of delight. Every few moments a gorgeous officer or slightly more subdued private would come leaping through the trees in 'a yellow cloud of fear'—Pierrot playfully cuffing his heels until attracted by some other scattered remnant of the leaguering host.

"The rebellion was suppressed. Kalakaua was maintained on the throne, and Hawaii was again at peace—all on account of Harry Gillig's bull pup."

Kill Poison Snakes in the Egg.

Some light is thrown by Surgeon-General Francis upon the question why it is that poisonous snakes still annually destroy so many thousands of persons in India, in spite of all the efforts of the government to exterminate them. Under the present system a reward is given for every dead serpent brought before the magistrate or civil authority of the district. A cobra lays from eighteen to twenty eggs at a time, so that for every one captured a large number remain at liberty.

Mr. Francis proposes that the eggs of snakes, which are to be found in the neighborhood of old walls and where the sun can reach them, should be secured. Unfortunately, there is an obstacle in the attitude of the people themselves. Supposed to be associated with the Deity, snakes are, in some parts, well cared for, and even worshiped. The low caste natives, therefore, who will alone undertake the work of extermination, receive but scant assistance from the community at large.

The Art of Tying a Knot.

A veteran sailor the other day made the remark: "If those people whose business requires them to handle ropes and tackling would only learn the true art of tying knots many a serious accident in life might be averted. There is not a single child in the land but should be taught early in life to make at least a couple of scientific hitches. This is one of the first duties of a sailor, and his selection of knots covers the whole fields of entanglement. The novice is hardly on shipboard and out of sight of land when he is called up to tie together at the end of a rope his soiled shirt and clothes that need a good dousing. It may seem a trifling thing, but it is just as important to know how to tie the correct knot as to be a good swimmer."

MRS. COLUMBUS.

A Daring and Brilliant Woman Who Deserves to Be Remembered.

Columbus married in 1479 or thereabout, a Miss Palestrello of Lisbon, who, father had distinguished himself as a navigator. A part of Miss Palestrello's marriage dower was a great collection of valuable charts, journals and important memoranda, etc. From childhood she had displayed wonderful enthusiasm on the subject, partaking to a marked degree of the speculative and adventuresome ideas and the schemes in the line of geographical discovery for which Lisbon was then the headquarters. She possessed a fine education and was widely known as a brainy, brilliant woman, who was constantly urging her husband on in the path which finally took him to the wondrous goal with which we are so familiar. While a girl Miss Paleatrello made a number of hazardous voyages with her father in unfamiliar waters, and later made many geographical drawings, several of which were used with great profit by Columbus when he had won her for his wife and set out upon his more important wanderings on the great deep.

BIG HOUSEKEEPING.

The Care of the Capitol at Washington and What It Costs.

Uncle Sam's biggest job in the housekeeping line is the care of the capitol. It costs $65,000 annually to run the building and keep it in repair. Architect Clark has charge of it. Under him, besides two clerks and a draughtsman, are seven carpenters, who have plenty of work to occupy them the year round. There are acres upon acres of painted surface inside and out, requiring the constant attention of six painters, while four plumbers do nothing but mend and renew the arrangements for water and gas. Six gardeners, aided by twenty assistants, keep the surrounding grounds and walks looking pretty and neat, and twenty-five laborers do chores, scrubbing the corridors every morning early, washing the steps, carrying freight, etc. There is a coppersmith also, who attends to the copper roof and makes sure that it doesn't leak. All of this has nothing to do with the affairs of the senate and house of representatives. They keep house for themselves in their respective wings of the capitol.

First Piano Made by Chickering.

The original first piano made by the late Jonas Chickering, of Boston, founder of the piano industry in the United States, has just been recovered by his son, George H. Chickering, and is to be kept by the latter gentleman as a historic memento. The original bill of sale was made out to James H. Bingham, and the date, June 23, 1823, marks the time of the first sale made of a new piano at the factory, then consisting of two rooms in Tremont street, next to King's chapel graveyard, in a small building located where the probate court building now is. Mr. Bingham was a friend of Jonas Chickering, and he bought the piano for a Miss Thankful C. Hutchinson at Alstead, N. H., whence it was shipped. Mr. Bingham was engaged to be married to Miss Hutchinson, and subsequently did marry her. The piano sold for $275. Twice afterward the piano was sold, always remaining, however, at Alstead.

Spoiled the Sentiment.

Daniel Potter, an old resident of Gloucester, Mass., once called the attention of his guests to an old clock, a great favorite of his. He told his friends of his great attachment to this ancient timepiece, and said, in a voice full of emotion: "Gentlemen, I have wound up that clock every night for more than forty years." He had evidently made an impression on his visitors, when one guest, who had been carefully examining the clock, turned the tide of feeling evoked by the story by saying drily: "Well, I always did think you were something of an idiot! That's an eight-day clock!"

The Light of the North Star.

A ray of light moves with such amazing velocity that it might wrap itself eight times round the earth between five ticks of the clock, and yet it would take that ray of light fifty years to come from the North star to this earth. When we look at that steadfast, unchanging star at night we see it in the light that left it half a century ago; and if the omnipotent hand that formed it, set it in place and called it by name should suddenly destroy it, we would continue to see it in its own light fifty years after it ceased to exist.

Their Father's Business.

Why do not girls who spend their time sighing for a career learn their father's business? A man died in Norwalk a few years ago, leaving a manufacturing business that paid $6,000 a year but not one of his family of daughters was able to conduct it, and, therefore, it passed to strangers, while the family went into comparative poverty. When a real estate man died in Jersey City not long ago his daughter announced her intention to carry on the business; she had assisted her invalid father in his office and had become so familiar with the business that she is now conducting it successfully.

Their Mothers-in-Law.

Colonel Powell, of the United States army, is authority for the statement that among the Cheyennes a man is never permitted to speak to his mother-in-law except through the intermediation of a third person.

Business Women.

Business women of Buffalo have formed a club. They began with a membership of seventy-five. Among other provisions is one that a class shall be opened in any subject of education on request of ten members.

Her Devotion.

"I wish Maria's lover was more of a Christian; it's very little time he spends on his knees, I'm thinking!"

"Perhaps not, but Maria's doing all she can for him. Why, I hear she spends hours on his knees herself."

An English scientist has made a calculation about the time it will take to fill the world with all the people it will hold. The present population of the globe is about 1,467,000,000, and he estimates that the maximum of the inhabitants that can be sustained on the entire land surface is 5,994,000,000, and that this figure will be reached in 2072.

IN CENTRAL PARK.

A Linden Tree of Peculiar Form, the Result of a Struggle for Life.

The determined and successful efforts that have been made to save fine trees in Central park, New York, at points were they are especially needed have resulted in the production of many vegetable curiosities. One of the most interesting of these is a linden in the northern part of the park. The tree stands on what appears to be an artificial mound, at the junction of a footpath with that portion of the drive directly below the Block house. The perils of youth had evidently threatened at various times to destroy the tree, for the trunk gives evidence of an early cleft. But the tree was of sturdy constitution, and three great limbs sprang from the injured trunk, while a dozen or more small ones clustered about the three great branches. The result is a trunk fourteen or fifteen inches in diameter at the ground, only fifteen or twenty inches long, and swelling at the forks to fully two feet in diameter. Meanwhile the great roots clutch the mound on which the tree stands as with the grip of a great hand. Outwardly the tree is a perfect cone of dense foliage, and it seems a thorough type of vegetable health.

Because He Had Lost His Nose.

The friends of free religion in America will be interested to hear that the Greek church, through one of its representatives, recently refused Christian burial to a communicant on the ground that he was minus a nose.

The case as reported by Novosti, was that of an old peasant of Rakmanoff, who, duly laid out for interment, had been mutilated by an intruding grimalkin during the temporary absence of the mourners. When the priest saw the corpse, and the accident was explained to him, he refused to perform the last services for the dead, making it necessary for the sanitary authorities to compel burial five days later.

About Razor Strops.

It is very much harder to sell a patent razor strop now than it used to be. More people shave themselves than ever, but the man who is his own barber seems much better posted on the art of how to keep his razors in order now than his ancestors were. The favorite strop now is a leather strap, costing about one-fourth what was paid for the old patent articles, and outliving them twice over. There used to be good money in selling strops from door to door, and the ladies bought frequently for their husbands. But a man would have to sell one of the modern sharpeners at nearly every house he passed in order to earn half a day's wages.

Saved His Child's Life.

A. N. Dilferbough, York, Neb., says: "The other day I came home and found my little boy down with cholera morbus, my wife scared, not knowing what to do. I went straightway and got a 25 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and gave it according to directions. You never saw such a change in a child. His limbs and body were cold. I rubbed his limbs and body with my hands, and after I had given him the second dose he went to sleep; and, as my wife says, "from a death-bed he was up playing in three hours." It saved me a doctor bill of about three dollars, and what is better, it saved my child. I can recommend it with a clear conscience." For sale by druggists.

The English people's taste for sensational novels is shown when 30 per cent. of books published belong to that class.

Other Fort Wayne people who enjoyed the day at our suburban watering resort were the Misses Louise Carnahan, Anna Bond, and the Messrs. Robert Carnahan, Frank Brown, Atibery and Will Ninde.

Last night, when John Pauley, the popular clerk at the Randall, went home he was very much surprised to step in upon a large number of friends, who had come to help him celebrate his twenty-eighth birthday. Among the guests were the Emmett quartet, who rendered some very effective pieces. Cards were enjoyed up till a late hour, when refreshments were served. All had an elegant time and it will be a long time before Mr. Pauley forgets his twenty-eighth anniversary.

Ramie Austen was presented in Nashville the other night with an immense bouquet, in the center of which was a gold and silver statuette, four inches high a representation in miniature of Bartholdi's statue of Liberty. A photograph of Miss Austen, in which she posed as a statue, was used as a model. A diamond represents the flame of the torch, and on the silver pedestal is a gold plate with the inscription: "To Miss Ramie Austen, Enlightening Art, from her friends of Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 4, 1891." Miss Austen is a niece of the Rt. Rev. Chas. Quintard, bishop of Tennessee. She will appear in this city tomorrow night in "Dangers of a Great City."

M. A. Brannon and wife are expected home tonight from their eastern trip. Mr. and Mrs. Brannon will be at home to their many friends on Fairfield avenue, they having taken the lovely new house recently built by Harry Ninde.

Frank J. Gleason, of Van Wert, Ohio, passed through the city this morning on his way home from Warsaw. He and a party of eight are making the trip overland, traveling at the rate of forty miles a day. They report a good time en route.

Last night at about 11 o'clock thieves entered the residence of James A. Armstrong, on West Berry street. They effected an entrance into the kitchen, but were frightened off before they made any further progress. Nothing of value was taken.

The boys tell a joke on Joe O'Rourke. A friend of his hitched his horse and buggy in front of Belger and Lennon's, and, going inside, told Joe he could go out and take them for a ride. Joe was quick to avail himself of the privilege, but when he reached the street took the wrong rig, a horse belonging to some one else. On his trip the horse ran away, and broke the buggy, and now Joe will pay the bill for repairs.

HONORING A VISITOR.

S. R. Roush Given a Reception by His Fort Wayne Friends.

One of the most pleasant social events of the week was the reception tendered S. R. Roush, of Bluffton, by a number of our young people. The affair took place at the pleasant home of William Gould, at 86 DeWald street, last evening, and the participants were the Misses Laura and Sadie Caldwell, Fannie and Lola Conover, Clara Greer, Emma and Lena McElfatrick, Edith Barcus, Edith Hains, Nellie Griffiths, Nellie Buck, Helen Crosby, Hattie Dyche and the Messrs. S. R. Roush, Will Meyers, Will S. Smith, W. A. Gould, W. A. Conover, H. R. Culbertson, E. Harley, Will Holmes, D. Jardine, Albert Hadden, D. C. Buck, Bret Hopkins and Delmer Fitch. The early evening was devoted to dancing and cards. Following came a supper served in three courses, then more dancing and music. All enjoyed the evening very much.

The most interesting feature of the evening was a skirt dance by Will Meyers and the singing by the M. O. A. Y. Glee club, composed of S. R. Roush, first tenor; Will Smith, second tenor; D. Jardine, first bass, and Elmer Harley, second bass.

School days will soon be here. Come to us for boys' suits. We are showing the most complete line in the city.

IS TWO DOLLARS OUT!

Peter Rudolph Pickel Pays That Sum in Order to Investigate Christian Science.

PORT RICHMOND,
STATEN ISLAND, N. Y.,
August 22, '92.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

As I sat writing at my desk on Thursday last a funeral procession passed the window which has caused a profound sensation in certain quarters of Staten Island.

A few months ago a young girl came to Staten Island on a visit to her aunt. She had taught school in New York city, but her health failing she was compelled to abandon her school and rest. Her aunt with whom she made her home, was a convert to Christian science, and she persuaded her niece that there was really nothing the matter with her; that her sickness was only a matter of imagination, and it would soon take wings to itself and fly away.

In order to fully disabuse her mind of the hallucination that she had anything the matter with her, they compelled her to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning, light the fires, scrub the floor, and give other evidences of freedom from all imaginative superstition. A strict course of diet was prescribed, of a character so light that a two-weeks-old chicken would have died on it. The poor creature, under the influence of her scientific aunt, lingered on till Tuesday, when, starved to death, she passed away.

The day before her death, I am told, she lit the fire and prepared breakfast for the entire family. This and the death of a young lady the week before, under precisely the same circumstances, set me to thinking. I understood the faith cure, but I did not understand the difference between the two.

I don't like to be thought ignorant on any subject, and as it is a matter which at the present time excites a very great interest in certain quarters I thought I would investigate it. So, as I wished to understand it, I thought I would consult one deep in the mysteries of the new revelations which professed to be several million miles in advance of the faith cure. Madam Purvianco is a professional scientist. It was to her that Miss Vernon was taken, who died last week. She has explored its mysteries as far as human investigation can go and is en rapport with the other world inhabitants. She is hardly five and thirty, fair to look upon, of commanding presence, almost six feet in height, turning the scale at two hundred, yet sweetly womanly withal, —an large blue eyes and sweet voice.

Two dollars was the consultation fee—but what was that—a mere bagatelle for the solution of the most obtruse scientific problem of the age.

Having laid down my two dollars, which was covered at once by a paper weight, the doctor looked at me and said: "Proceed, sir; what is it you wish to know?" "I wish to know," I replied, "the difference between Christian science and faith cure." "Oh, my dear sir, there is not the slightest resemblance between them. One has a blind belief in the supervising power of the Almighty, the other soars into the empyrean immensity, and holds a spiritual communion with the supernal powers of the Infinite. The one means ignorance, the other intelligence; the one means light, the other darkness, hyperborean, impenetrable, vast, unfathomable, never-ending. Let me explain. The spirit, or as you would say, the life of man, is the crystalized essence of the Infinite. This etheral and purified concentration is not created, is not born; it always existed, and always will exist, for it contains within itself the vitalizing powers of indestructibility which is the primary and distinguishing characteristic of the Infinite Himself, of which man is indissolubly a part. The Infinite always existed; matter was created. The Infinite was indestructible, matter can be annihilated, or if not annihilated, at least so changed in form that it can be said no longer to exist. Now matter is composed of molecular particles which in themselves are incapable of pleasure or pain. A stone when struck feels no pain. It never has the headache; it never weeps or laughs—and why, do you ask?—because the stone lacks the vitalizing spirit of the Infinite, which in all creation is man's distinguishing and sole characteristic. Life permeates all nature, the trees, the grass, the animal creation high and low, all are vital with life, but it is not the life of man. The molecular tissues that compose them may be chemically the same, but the etheral fluid is lacking, the essence of the Infinite is not there. The one is of earth, earthly, and the other of heaven, heavenly. Matter of itself knows nothing and feels nothing. Matter being the lower power, should always be subject to the higher power, which is the mind. It is the soul, the spirit of the Infinite, which, being sublimated and etheralized, is alone capable of impression, or as you would say, feeling. There is a constant conflict raging between mind and matter; mind should control matter, not matter control mind, and therein lies the solution of the problem you seek. This is Christian science. This is the mystic talisman which is to bring man into closer communion with nature, which is God, where matter shall be annihilated, and mind shall be supreme, and God shall be all in all."

I arose stunned and dazed and walked away. I was of earth, earthy evidently, for I had a jumping toothache, a sharp pain in my back, sciatica in my left leg, and this, with an ugly turn of heart failure from which I suffer, served me with the unmistakable notice that I am still several miles this side of Paradise with every prospect of remaining there for some time to come. I know it is only imagination, but it feels just as bad as if it were real. I suppose it is all right. I can only say that my matter has got the better of me. It is true that my mind at the present time is not in first class condition, but my matter is infinitely worse off than my mind, and my matter succeeds in making my mind exceedingly uncomfortable. I know it ought not to be so, but it is so, and what am I going to do about it? I am out two dollars—a martyr to Christian science. Perhaps it may come back to me in the infinitesmal affinity of the infinitude, or perhaps it is dissolved in the indissoluble molecular molecules. I am going to wait and see. Now you know just as much about Christian science as I do, and at much less cost; be grateful and await for the development.

PETER RUDOLPH PICKEL.

POISONED HERSELF.

Miss Ramie Austen the Victim of a Careless Druggist.

Miss Ramie Austen, the actress, who has been so successful in her new drama, "Dangers of a Great City," was almost the victim of a careless druggist, an occurrence which is very frequent now-a-days. A few days since, in New York city, after a very exhaustive performance, Miss Austen felt quite ill and administered to herself double the dose prescribed by the physician, believing that if a little helped, twice the quantity must be more sure and speedy. The scene that followed can well be imagined, as the medicine proved to be an unlabelled bottle of poison. Had the doctor not been close at hand she would, indeed, have been "under the daisies" now—to quote her own phrase, and the stage would have lost one of the most beautiful women, as well as a clever artist. The "Dangers of a Great City" appears at the Temple tomorrow night.

LOST HIS TICKER.

A Gold Watch Stolen at the Office of Theo. Thieme.

Just before noon today a sneak thief entered the office of the Wayne Knitting mills, corner of Clinton and Main streets, and stole the gold watch of Theo. Thieme, the manager of the company, from his vest, which was hanging on a chair.

There was no person in the office at the time and the thief made his escape. The watch is valued at $130.

MORE LIGHT.

A Resident of the South End on the Subject.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

In view of the almost nightly raid of sneak thieves in the outer districts of the city and the fact that the police force seems inadequate to the proper patroling of the same there seems to be an urgent necessity for more street lights. The citizens in the outskirts of the city pay the same tax per valuation as those centrally located and yet are deprived of the safeguards and advantages enjoyed by the latter. As a protection to the property and as conservation of the safety and comfort of our people street lights are of very great value. What benefit is a policeman in any locality if it is so dark he cant see a midnight marauder until he accidentally runs against him? If there is a shortage of funds increase the levy, or seek contracts for street lighting in the open market, as there seems to be a well defined impression that the city could be lighted much more cheaply than it is now and just as well. We are not antagonizing home industry, but we want more light in the localities remote from the business center. People residing a mile from the court house without light cannot quite appreciate the equity and justice of paying tax to furnish lights down town. Let us have more light. The taxpayer will lock horns with the tax gatherer on the question of taxation for either water or light.

NO POLES ALLOWED.

Chinese Superstition Hampers a Telegraph Company's Work.

There are no telegraph poles in China. Not because there are no telegraph lines, nor yet because there is not wood suitable for use as poles. Strangely enough the reason is purely religious.

The Chinese worship their dead fathers and grandfathers, and regard the resting places of their remains so sacred that they deem it a sacrilege to allow a shadow to be cast upon their graves. When the linemen of the first Chinese telegraph companies began operations they were greatly embarrassed in their operations by crowds of inhabitants, who followed them about and with the most frightful blasphemies, cut down the poles almost as fast as they were erected.

For some time no explanation could be obtained, but at last the working parties discovered that in the more thickly settled districts of the Celestial empire graves were everywhere to be found, and scarcely a pole could be erected anywhere but that at some time of the day it cast its shadow on a grave.

The difficulty was insuperable, and the Chinese government, anxious as it was to render assistance, stood powerless. So all the wire went underground, and it is said that the system proved perfectly efficient.

PRESERVED FISH.

Ten Thousand Years Old and Imbedded in Rock Salt.

In making railroad tunnels, cuts, etc., and in sinking wells and pits in Nevada, Utah and Arizona, salt strata are often struck at varying depths, sometimes as much as a hundred yards beneath the surface. Hundreds of fish, perfectly preserved, are found in blocks of this pure rock salt. These salt fields are supposed to occupy what was once a lake thirty miles long, fifteen miles wide and many hundred feet deep. The fish found resemble the pike and pickerel species, and are wholly unlike the fish found in the lakes and rivers of that region at the present time. The specimens found are not petrified but are as perfectly preserved in the flesh as though but recently frozen in a block of ice. When taken out and exposed to the heat of the sun they become as hard as blocks of wood. Occasionally workmen at the salt works located in "the basin" have attempted to eat these antediluvian relics. Men of learning who have investigated the matter say that these salt preserved fish are at least 10,000 years old.

At the state convention of stenographers, which met at Indianapolis about the middle of August, Miss Mamie Remmert, stenographer for Wing & Mahurin, was elected a member of the executive committee, and W. E. McDermut, president of McDermut's Business college, was elected president of the national association.

WHEN some of the workmen of Pittsburg demanded that the City Council return to Mr. Carnegie the $1,000,000 he donated for a public library, they showed that they were right mad, and also that when men get right mad they can part with a "right smart" of their common sense in a little while.

MR. GLADSTONE likes tea, particularly when made by his wife. If he doesn't also dote on it "cold," that's another point where he differs from some of our own prominent statesmen.
